Elise Palmigiani

Dommartin, France

"Sunset over the Village"
31,5" X 31,5", oil on canvas, 2010

I am a French painter with Italian origins. My paintings reflect a passion for the fauvist movement. I get my inspiration from the reality I intend to project on canvas. I then attempt to translate my own perception of this reality into a personal vision.

My bold palette knife work and use of intense colors allow me to communicate emotions as well as opposing feelings such as serenity and exaltation.

I love to use pure pigments, as they are very warm and useful for catching and retaining light. Palettes knives, brushes, in fact, a multitude of tools are useful to liberate my artistic cravings and expression.
